DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claim 1 is objected to because of the following informalities: The recitation first opening in a wheel is unclear. A wheel is manufactured to include at least one hole therefore the applicant is not clear as to whether there is a second hole with respect to the recitation a "first hole". Also the applicant cites a second opening in a housing with a first opening in the housing never being anticipated. Appropriate correction is required.

Double Patenting

2. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-17 is provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-12 of copending Application No. 10/692975. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the cited application teaches all the basic features of the claimed invention. Except the fastener as claimed in the claims herein is disclosed in the cited application discloses a clip. Although the current application sets forth a fastener, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to interpret the clip and fastener as elements that provide the same function of attaching a tire monitoring apparatus and valve stem together. This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Straub.

Regarding claim 1 Straub teaches a tire monitor for monitoring 20 a tire parameter (abstract), the tire monitor 20 having a housing 21 with a spherical surface (fig. 1), the housing 21 further having a second opening 31 that extends through the surface; a tire valve stem 40 that is configured to extend through the first and second openings of the valve stem 40 having a threaded portion (fig.1); and a threaded fastener 30 that is engageable with the threaded portion of the valve stem for attaching together the tire monitor and the valve stem (abstract), the fastener having a spherical surface that engages the spherical surface of the housing when the fastener is engaged with the threaded portion of the valve stem (col. 2 lines 40-50).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 2-12 and 13-17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Straub.

Regarding claims 2-13 and 14-17 Sanchez teaches a configuration that allows air to pass through the valve and a fastening structure that detains a monitor 20 onto a valve stem 40. Sanchez does not multiple projections with respect to the base portion of the fastener, three points of contact and where they lay, cylindrical surface for the housing however since Sanchez teaches means to receive the fastener structure while attaching together the tire monitor and the valve stem (claim 1 Sanchez), lacking any criticality it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the valve stem and fastener in the most appropriate and feasible configuration to detain the fastening structure for the purpose of mating the tire monitoring apparatus to the valve. Moreover since the claimed features is a various modification of Sanchez, it does not appear that these physical features enhances the functionality of the fastener, which is to mate the monitoring apparatus and stem together.
